JOHN SMITH, MONAD.

[J. F. Griffin, M. D., in N. O. Times-Democrat.]

Some years ago, when the subject of transcendentalism was quite the fashion and everybody was talking it, a young gentleman who was sitting near the guards of a steamboat plying the waters of the Hudson, asked an elder companion to explain to him the meaning of transcendentalism.

"Nothing is easier," was the reply. "You see yon rock cliff, forming the bank of the river; you observe also a hole or cavity in the cliff. Well, now, take away all the rock around the hole and leave nothing but the hole—that is transcendentalism."

Dressed in the garb of philosophical language, the ordinary human mind is not prepared to take in the ideas of transcendental philosophy, but when brought before the mental vision in a plain manner it is by no means inexplicable.

Were I to undertake to talk to one unacquainted with technical language upon the subject of chemistry, I should not be understood. Neither would I be understood if I talked of atoms, of molecules, of isomorphism, of acidulous and basilous radicals, together with the whole nomenclature of the science. This, indeed, would be mysticism, and such I take it to be with transcendental philosophy, as technically elucidated.

I can easily understand the meaning of Plato when he talks of ideas in the plainest of language, but who is not lost in bewilderment when Kant and Liebwitz and Hegel talk of the agreement of the subjective with the objective, of the knowable with the unknowable, of the Ego and the non-Ego, of the monad and the noumenon.

John Smith was a bachelor, and, living alone, he consequently slept alone. He sat up late one night reading the "Critique of Pure Reason," by Emanuel Kant, and, as he read, candor and truth requires the statement that at intervals he partook of the contents of a black looking bottle on his sideboard, which bore upon the label the legend "Eau de Vie," and which, doubtless, he drank in order to clear his mind of gathering cobwebs.

It was late before he went to bed, and consequently late when he got up. As he did so he put on a robe de chambre, and then took a seat in his arm-chair, not neglecting, however, to pay his respects to the bottle that bore that "strange device." As he took his seat, he chanced to glance toward the bed he had just left, and was not a little surprised at seeing a man lying where a moment before he had lain, and wearing a robe de chambre so identically like his own, which was of a peculiar pattern, that it struck him as singular.

He was somewhat startled, and turning toward the individual who occupied the bed, he thus addressed him:

"Who in the name of thunder are you?" There are reasons for supposing that thunder was not the word he used, but it is always difficult to report one's exact language, especially if it be irreverent. "Who am I?" said the subject in bed. "Well, to be sure, I am John Smith." "Well" said the interrogator, "how's that? I am John Smith." "Certainly," was the reply. "I am perfectly aware your name is John Smith, and as you and I are the same person, it follows that my name also is John Smith."

"What?" said the interrogating John Smith, "you and I the same person? That's all gammon."

"You can just believe what you please about it," was the reply, "but I'm your double."

The original John Smith had a suspicion this was true, for he felt as if something belonging to him was missing. So he said:

"Are you me, or am I you?"

"Both," was the reply. "You and I are both of us. I am the non-ego and you are the ego. I am the objective, and you are the subjective. I am the ideal, and you are the material. I am the heteronomy of will, and you are the autonomy of will. I am the noumenon and you are the phe-noumenon. I am the unconditional, and you are the conditional, constituting the non-identity and the identity. I am the duad, and you are the monad, and henceforth you shall be known as John Smith, the monad."

"Well!" said John Smith, the monad, "that rather beats anything I ever heard of; upon my word I never thought there were two of us. Perhaps now there are three of us." "Oh no," said John Smith, the duad, "that can not be, the triad only belongs to deity. You and I in ourselves constitute absolute totality. You are the substance, I am the accident. You are the cause, I am the effect. We together constitute the dogmatic realism, and the dogmatic idealism."

"Is there anything," inquired the monad, "categoric about us?" "Ah you refer to Aristotle," said the duad. "Aristotle, who was he," asked the monad. "Aristotle," said the duad, "was one of the greatest philosophers and naturalists that ever lived. Dr. Johann Muller says he was the clearest intellect that ever illuminated the world; Campanella styles him Naturæ genius, the genius of nature; and St. Jerome, the Christian, wrote of him, as Miraculum mundi, the miracle of the world. He was born at Stagira in the days of Grecian grandeur, was brought up at the court of Macedon, his father being the physician of King Philip. He was the tutor of Alexander the Great, and for twenty years the favorite pupil of Plato. He had every advantage of study, and according to Strabo was the first man who ever formed a library. So great was his genius that he controlled the opinions of the enlightened portions of the human race for 2,000 years. He wrote many books—one called the Categories, to which I thought you referred. When Alexander was born, Philip wrote to the Stagirite: 'I inform you I have a son. I thank the gods, not so much for making me a father as for giving me a son in an age when he can have an Aristotle for his instructor. I hope you will make him a successor worthy of me, and a king worthy of Macedonia.'"

Here the duad ceased, and the monad then remarked: "Considering that you are the other half of me, you seem to be pretty knowing, but I suspect that you got that out of some book. But let me ask you a question that requires no learning. Do you eat or not? for I assure you it is all I can do to keep myself supplied with the necessities for supporting life, and now that there are two of us, I fear on that score there will be trouble." "Be easy," said the duad; "whatever you eat I eat, in a spiritualized condition; remember that you and I are both of us." "Then, whatever you eat or consume you say is spiritualized. I like that idea very much. I am fond of spirits myself, so you must have a good time of it. By the way," continued John Smith, the monad, "for some time past I have been thinking, as you may know, being me, of marrying the Widow Jones, but I don't like this idea of there being two of us; my wife would be a bigamist." "Well, now," said the duad, "you must abandon the notion of marrying the Widow Jones or any one else; I shall oppose any such an arrangement." "I don't intend," said the monad, "for you or any other man to dictate to me in a matter of that sort. I'll give you to understand I have a will of my own." "I'r-bably so," said the duad; "every man thinks he is conscious of a power to determine, in things which he conceives to depend upon his determination. The determination to do or not to do something which we conceive to be in our power, is called will, but probably it would be well enough to bear in mind this fact, as Mr. Buckle says, that when we perform an action we perform it in consequence of some motive or motives, that these motives are the results of some antecedents, and as all antecedents are either in the mind or out of it, we clearly see that all the variations in the results—in other words all the changes of which history is full, all the vicissitudes of the human race, their progress or their decay, their happiness or their misery—must be the fruit of a double action—one of external phenomena upon the mind and another of the mind upon the phenomena."

John Smith, the monad, was so put out with this philosophy that he determined to get rid of his spiritual self, who was lying so composedly in the bed. He suddenly jumped up from his arm-chair, went to the sideboard, poured out the last contents of his bottle into a glass and drank it down, and proceeded to throw aside his robe de chambre preparatory to dressing. He was somewhat surprised to see his double instantly spring out of bed, proceed to the sideboard and go through the process of pouring out liquor and drinking it down, although he himself had already drained the bottle; but when he saw the duad smack his lips he stood in admiration and almost wished he were a spirit himself, so readily could he supply himself, he thought, from an empty bottle. He proceeded to dress himself and saw that his double had thrown aside his robe and was dressing also.

John Smith, the monad, seeing this, endeavored to dress in haste, so that getting dressed first he would run out of the door, and shutting it quickly, would shut up the duad, and thus get rid of him. It was a failure. As he rushed out, and slammed the door, he found the duad by his side ready dressed. He strode down the street with the duad close upon him. He made directly for a drinking saloon, and so rapid were his movements that every one who saw wondered, but none saw the duad.

John Smith, the monad, entered the saloon, and he treated the crowd, a thing he had never been known to do before. In fact, he had never before treated so much as a single person, and therefore his friends recognized that he was under some unusual influence. He kept his eyes on the duad, and noticed that whenever he drank the duad drank also.

Turning to the duad, he addressed him thus: "See here, the first thing you know you will be drunk." As no one saw the duad and, as Smith's face was in the direction of his friend Robinson, all thought he had addressed that individual, and there was a laugh. He kept on treating and drinking, and finally had the satisfaction of seeing the duad drunk, never suspecting that he himself was drunk—so drunk, indeed, that his friend Robinson found it necessary to take him home, and the burden of his talk was as follows: "Ego — non ego — hic — absolute — subjective — consciousness —hic —objective—knowable—hic. Ego cogito —free will—hic—necessity—ergo sum." "Some?" said Robinson, "some of what?" "First cause," said he. "I reckon it was brandy," said Robinson. Smith continued: "Noumenon—Kant." "Can't what?" said Robinson. "Plato." "Play to what?" said his friend. "Cognition," said he, and by this time he was put to bed, and he went to sleep, and if he did not sleep the sleep of the just it was at all events the sleep that followeth deep potations. On the following morning when he awoke he found that he had arrived at full consciousness. He looked around for the duad and was glad not to see him, and swearing off then and there he ever afterward remained a sober man, and finally, notwithstanding the duad and his quotations from Mr. Buckle, he proposed to the widow and was accepted."

Steam Whistles.

[Chicago Herald.]

The locomotive whistle may be termed the forerunner of all the steam whistles. They are all constructed after that one pattern. It consists of a cock opening by four side holes into an annular chamber, whence the steam escapes through an annular aperture, about one-sixty-fourth of an inch in width, striking in its exit the edge of a bell fixed by a stem to the cock, whereby the sound is produced. The edge of this bell is about one-thirty-second of an inch thick, and should be exactly over the openings so that the issuing steam impinges directly upon it. The metal, in order to produce an artistic sound, should be of the same composition as clock bells.

If these details of arrangement and size are strictly adhered to, and the size of the whistle is calculated to a nicety in relation to the steam power operating it, a full, rich sound can be produced, as a few steam organs or calliopes still in existence amply demonstrate. But inasmuch as steam whistles are simply matters of utility and not constructed with a view to the harmony of spheres, they emit the most excruciating sounds—the most hideous and dominant in all the ear-piercing noises produced in a great city.

Felling Trees with Dynamite.

[Exchange.]

Forest trees are now felled with dynamite. A cartridge of the explosive substance is placed in a channel bored directly under the tree to be operated upon, and when exploded the tree is simply forced up bodily and falls intact on its side. In most instances it is found that the tree is not fractured by the force of the explosion; a large proportion of wood at the base of the trunk can be utilized which is now lost. For clearing forest properties this method is admirably adapted, as it brings up the root of the tree at the one operation, and dispenses with the tedious and costly process of grubbing the roots of the felled timber.

Cottage-Built.

[Detroit Free Press.]

"Jim Smith is a cottage-built man."

"What kind of a man is that?"

"The man with only one story is called a cottage built man, and Jim has only got one."

More of Her.

[Puck.]

"You say you know Sallie Jones?"

"Yes."

"Is she homelier than her sister Mary?"

"Yes. She's bigger."

Must Be Tall.

A very large majority of the advertisements for drug clerks in the English papers insist that the young men shall be tall.

New Orleans Picayune: The man who has nothing to say is unfortunately the man who is 'ways talking.

A Highly Educated Chimpanzee.

[Dr. Brehm in Popular Science Monthly.]

I was once the owner of a highly educated chimpanzee. He knew all the friends of the house, all our acquaintances, and distinguished them readily from strangers. Every one treating him kindly be looked upon as a personal friend. He never felt more comfortable than when he was admitted to the family circle and allowed to move freely around, and open and shut doors, while his joy was boundless when he was assigned a place at the common table, and the guests admired his natural wit and practical jokes. He expressed his satisfaction and thanks to them by drumming furiously on the table.

In his numerous moments of leisure his favorite occupation consisted in investigating carefully every object in his reach. He lowered the door of the stove for the purpose of watching the fire, opened drawers, rummaged boxes and trunks, and played with their contents, provided the latter did not look suspicious to him. How easily suspicion was aroused in his mind might be illustrated by the fact that, as long as he lived, he shrank with terror from the common rubber ball. Obedience to my orders and attachment to my person, and to everybody caring for him, were among his cardinal virtues, and he bored me with his persistent wishes to accompany me.

He knew perfectly his time for retiring, and was happy when some one of us carried him to the bed-room like a baby. As soon as the light was put out he would jump into the bed and cover himself, because he was afraid of the darkness. His favorite meal was supper with tea, which he was fond of, provided it was largely sweetened and mixed with rum. He sipped it from the cup, and ate the dipped bread slices with a spoon, having been taught not to use the fingers in eating; he poured his wine from the bottle and drank it from the glass. A man could hardly behave himself more gentlemanlike at table than did that monkey.

The Barber on Gamblers' Superstitions.

[Chicago Herald.]

"Now, to tell the truth, just between you and I and the door, I don't believe cocoanut oil will any more make hair grow on a man's head than it will on the palm of his hand, but it's good medicine for the spirits. That's the place to help a man. Make him feel good in his mind and he'll get along the other way. That's the way with the gamblers. They take more enjoyment nursing their superstitions than in anything else. Do you know I've seen the boys follow a noted gambler in here and sit around? Well, I have. They didn't want a shave, oh, no! They'd wait till the man shaving him was through, and then there'd be a jump for the chair he just got out of. You see, they think he's so lucky everything he touches turns to gold, and that if they can shave right after him they'll get some of his luck. They'll follow a man that's hit the bank heavy in the same way.

"Some gamblers want to shave on Friday. Others won't shave on certain days—their unlucky days. Once I got a black cat to chase the rats out of the bath-room, but I had to fire him or lose my gambler customers. For more than a year we used to open up shop at 3 o'clock in the morning once a week to cut a certain sport's hair. Once down east he had his hair cut at that time of the morning, and he made a big win immediately after. Then he wanted his hair cut every time at the same hour. It cost him $5 a week, but he did have good luck. Where is he now? Out at the Bridewell, poor fellow. His luck turned. Now the next!"

An Ohio Man's Discovery.

[Washington Cor. New York Graphic.]

Representative Warner, of Ohio, showed me the other day a thick steel plate, which he had just been exhibiting to the president and Secretary Whitney. The plate was two full inches thick and of tool steel, and was perforated with a number of smoothly bored holes. Wrapped up with the plate was a three-inch polished steel cylinder, about three-quarters of an inch in diameter, pointed in a sharp cone. The point was unturned. Yet this was the ball that had penetrated the plate when fired from a gun made by a blacksmith under the new Eastman method of discharging gun-powder. Eastman is an Ohio man, and has been working on the problem of the greatest initial velocity to projectiles for years. Now he claims to have solved it, and has enlisted the sympathy and admiration of Gen. Warner. An attempt will no doubt be made to introduce it into the navy.

Teachers' Primary Work.

[Wisconsin Journal of Education.]

Primary work is discovered to have many attractions. For in a school of small children, government is easy and accomplished mainly by gentle means. There is, moreover, something very attractive to a bright and intelligent young woman in the modern methods of teaching young children. She is to be entertaining, lively, fertile in new devices, to win the love and admiration of a company of docile little children. Her work is almost entirely confined to the schoolroom. There are no tiresome exercises to be looked over out of the school hours, no piles of dry examination papers to be read on Saturdays and in the evenings.

In the intermediate and grammar grades, on the other hand, there are intractable pupils to manage; the forces of evil in the child are gathering strength, and must be met with firmness, patience and wisdom.

Pasteur's Water Filter.

[Chicago News.]

The porcelain filter exhibited at the London international health exhibition last year is an apparatus devised by the laboratory directors of the celebrated Pasteur, and has the merits of great simplicity and of furnishing water absolutely free from any possibility of organic impurity. Briefly, it consists of one or more porcelain cylinders, set in metal tubes two inches in diameter and twelve inches long, the whole inclosed in a metallic case, which is attached to the hydrant. The water enters the space between the porcelain and metal tubes, and, percolating through the former, drains into an outlet pipe a water so pure as to be used by Pasteur in his experiments.

SONOMA INDEX-TRIBUNE.

S. H. GRANICE ..... EDITOR

SATURDAY, AUGUST 15, 1885.

A FRUIT CANNERY WANTED.

Why is it, in view of the immense amount of fruit raised in the Sonoma Valley, that some enterprising individual with the means at his command, does not erect in Sonoma a fruit cannery and drying establishment? Such an undertaking would prove a paying investment from the word go. At least such has been the experience of like enterprises in Petaluma, Santa Rosa, Napa and adjoining towns. If the business is a profitable one in the above mentioned places, it will prove equally so in Sonoma. If a fruit cannery and drying establishment were erected here the promotors would find at the doors of their cannery, fruit of all kinds in abundance. Much of this fruit is now allowed to go to waste on account of the expense of shipping it to San Francisco, and the ruinous low prices prevailing there for the same. To a man with the requisite capital and a knowledge of the business, Sonoma offers excellent inducements for an enterprise of this kind. Should such an individual be not forthcoming, we would urge upon our orchardists the necessity of taking this matter into their own hands and forming a joint stock company. If others can buy fruit and make money in canning and drying it, so can our orchardists; and it looks to us as though it would be a wise and sensible move for them to take action in this matter, and establish a market for the products of their orchards right here in Sonoma by the building of a cannery and fruit drying establishment.

It is a great pity that fools are allowed to handle firearms. No less than five or six men have been shot and killed in this section of the State, so far this season, by excited hunters, who, pending an attack of "buck ague," have mistaken their companion hunters for deer. This thing is getting to be altogether too monotonous. There should be a variation. Now, for instance, if the gun in the hands of one of these man-deer killers would explode and blow his worthless head off before the bullet reached its victim it would make a good item and we would publish it with pleasure. It might also have a tendency to lessen the number of these "accidents." However, the best remedy would be to keep guns out of the reach of fools and idiots, as they are dangerous in the hands of all such, as these deer-hunting exploits go to prove.

The railroad companies have signified their willingness to transport, free of charge, all exhibits to the Louisville Exposition which opens in that city this month. We hope to see the products of the Sonoma Valley well represented there, particularly her wines; as a proper display of our wine cellars will do much toward advertising our wine and making a market for the same. Hon. W. McP. Hill and J. H. Drummond are the commissioners for the Sonoma Valley and they can give all the desired information to those who wish to place on exhibition the products of their vineyard or orchard.

The Santa Rosa "Democrat" remarks that from the appearance of the roads and bridges, it would infer that the road tax should be at least doubled this year. Correct. The roads cannot be repaired by our roadmasters without the wherewithal, and it is a fact that the apportionment for the present fiscal year was altogether inadequate for road purposes. Let our Supervisors retrench on something else than road expenses, as bad roads and dangerous bridges can illy be borne by our people. Give us good roads and the wear and tear saved on horseflesh and cart wheels will more than pay for them.

Maxwell, the supposed St. Louis murderer, arrived in San Francisco on Monday, in the custody of officers, from Auckland, and has been taken to St. Louis to answer for his crime.

Hon. Barclay Henley was given a grand welcome by the Democracy at the Grand Opera House last Monday evening.

THE DISCOVERER OF GOLD IS DEAD.

The man who discovered the first nugget of gold in California is dead. We refer to James W. Marshall. He died last Sunday at Coloma, at the age of 73, where, in 1848, he discovered in the mill race of Sutter's lumber mill the shining metal. This circumstance created the greatest excitement and was the means of bringing to these shores an immense tide of immigration and making a comparative unknown and unsettled country world-wide famous. Had not Marshall made this discovery, who can tell what California would have been to-day? As it was, the deep gulches and the rocky river bars of the Sierra, which had never before echoed the voice of the white man, soon became the scene of busy life and activity. There sprang up in the wilderness on every side brisk mining camps, live towns and embryo cities, and in the short space of a few months from the discovery made by Marshall, California, the interior of which was comparatively unknown, had been penetrated from center to circumference by the adventuresome prospector, and every arroyo, gulch, canyon and flat visited in the mad rush of the red-shirted miner for a paying claim.

It is just thirty-seven years since Marshall made the discovery of gold. In that time he has witnessed the steady progress of California and its people toward fame and fortune. In the rush for wealth he was thrust aside and almost forgotten, and while thousands made fortunes through his discovery, Marshall lived and died a poor man.

ANOTHER GREAT EXPOSITION.

Visitors at the great World's Exposition during its closing days could not realize that it was so soon to end and be but a memory. It was an exhibition of such great magnitude, of such unparalleled grandeur, so representative of the world's richness and progress, so indicative of continued great commercial and industrial possibilities, gathered together after so many months of incessant labor and at such great expense, and finally having reached completeness and perfection; and having through unfortunate and unavoidable circumstances been attended by so comparatively a small proportion of the people of this country, it seemed a sacrilege that it should now cease and pass from existence.

Prominent citizens of New Orleans and of the Mississippi Valley, feeling that its destiny had not been accomplished, that the great work it had inaugurated was not sufficiently advanced, determined that the great Exposition should again be opened.

A new organization, for the formation of which steps were taken long before the closing of the World's Exposition, under the name of the North, Central and South American Exposition, has purchased the building and property of the World's Exposition, and will open on November 10th and continue open until April 1, 1886.

A large number of the finest exhibits, not only of private exhibitors, but State, Territorial and Inter-National exhibits, like those of Mexico, were suffered to remain in anticipation of a re-opening. Already since the announcement hundreds of applications for space from old and new exhibitors have been received, and it is said that the complete filling with exhibits of seventy-two acres of space covered by the buildings is certain.

Captain Samuel H. Buck, who so satisfactorily filled the position of Director-General after Maj. Burke's retirement, is the new Director-General, and Col. John W. Glenn, late U. S. Supervising Architect, is the new Chief of Installation.

We are in receipt of the initial number of "Morse's Merchants' Patrol," which is devoted to detective and police interests. It is published by Harry Morse, one of the most famous detectives on the Pacific Coast. We commend the publication to our readers and especially to those engaged in the detective and police business.

Justice Field, Jim Johnson and the "Alta" were fearfully flayed by Barclay Henley on the occasion of his recent speech at the Grand Opera House, San Francisco. Tit for tat.

Chauvet and others, praying that moneys be expended on roads in the vicinity of Glen Ellen, there being no funds to comply with the request of said petition, I now move that the said petition be laid on the table. So ordered.

This matter having been considered, and the proof of the parties heard by the Board, and this hour set for the final action of the Board, I now move that it be made the order of the Board that the damage to J. J. Thelan, the owner of the land proposed to be taken, is $50 for the land taken, and that the damages to the property not taken by reason of the taking of the part sought to be taken and the use to which it is to be applied is $200, for the fencing rendered necessary, provided that this proposed road shall be fenced by the said J. J. Thelan on or along the margin of said road, and he shall remove all artificial obstructions, so that the said road shall be an open way within eight months, and that it be the further order of the Board that the report of the viewers herein be approved except as to the damages assessed or awarded. So ordered.

Henry Demetz presented the following bill: Loss and damage of Henry Demetz for personal injuries to his child, $385; medical treatment and consultation, $65; nursing, etc., $50; total $500. The following explanation accompanied the foregoing bill: To damages sustained by reason of said Sonoma county having the furniture of the old Court House placed on the sidewalk, and in front of said old Court House in the city of Santa Rosa, Sonoma county, Cal., in a careless and negligent manner, on March 28, 1885, and which said furniture was heavy and negligently permitted by said county to remain on said sidewalk on said day, and on said day Edward Demetz, the minor son of said Henry Demetz and which said son was of the age of four years, was passing along on said sidewalk where he had a right to be and to pass along, and then and there a large and heavy case of shelving belonging to said county so negligently placed on said sidewalk, without any fault of this claimant or of said boy, and without any contributory negligence on the part of said parent or his said boy, the said case of shelving fell over and struck said boy and fractured his right leg, and the said boy became sick therefrom and was confined to his bed for about eight weeks, and suffered physically greatly thereby, and the said claimant lost his society for about ten weeks, and said child was so injured thereby that he was not fully recovered therefrom, to said Henry Demetz's loss and damage in the sum of $385. The bill for medical attendance and nursing is also set forth at length, amounting to $115, making the total claim $500.

James Warner, who witnessed the accident, was sent for, and explained the position of all parties and the furniture to the Board.

Taken under advisement.

The number of school children in Sonoma county, according to the last school census is 8,131.

The dancing school of Prof. Marsden is largely attended every Thursday evening and is quite a success.

Don't forget the benefit ball of the Sonoma Brass Band, at Union Hall, Friday evening, August 21st.

The Union Hotel is doing a rushing business. Don't forget that this hotel is becoming more popular every day. *

The amount of school money apportioned for Sonoma county by the State Superintendent of Public Instruction is $12,277.81.

Any one wishing a brand new double-barreled, breech-loading $75 shot-gun for $60, would do well to call at this office and examine the same. *

Berthold Hoen, the founder of city of Santa Rosa, died at his residence in that place on the 7th inst. Deceased was a native of Germany, aged 63 years.

The Union Hotel is becoming quite a resort for city visitors to Sonoma. The fame of this hotel is becoming well known to travelers and pleasure seekers. *

Encourage the Sonoma Brass Band by attending the grand ball to be given for the benefit of the same next Friday evening. Everybody will be there and a good time is assured to all who are present.

Mr. and Mrs. G. P. Dey of Orange Lawn will please accept the thanks of this office for a box of fine fruit, consisting of an assortment of peaches, pears, apples and plums.

Be sure and send your children to the dancing school at Union Hall, next Thursday, at 4 o'clock. Give them a chance for an education in grace and deportment under Prof. Marsden's instruction. *

The directors of the Sonoma and Marin District Agricultural Association will please accept our thanks for complimentary tickets to their nineteenth annual Fair, to be holden in Petaluma on August 24th to 29th inclusive.

Also, plain and fancy sewing done with neatness and dispatch. Ladies wishing work done in Mrs. Golden's line are invited to give her a call. +

Mr. O. B. Shaw brought to this office the present week a bunch of Hungarian prunes, which for size and beauty we have never seen excelled. Mr. Shaw has a model orchard and is one of the most painstaking horticulturists in the State, and the fruit grown by him cannot be beat for size and quality anywhere.

The sewer on First street West, alongside the Union Hotel, has become a perfect nuisance and is a menace to the health of the town. The attention of the Town Trustees is called to the same. Prompt action in cleaning out and flushing the sewer in question may be the means of preventing much sickness in our midst.

Ayer's Ague Cure is intended to act as an antidote to malarial fevers, and all diseases generated by marsh, swamp or slough. Science has brought this remedy nigh to perfection. No quinine, no arsenic, nor injurious drug enters into its composition. Chemistry and the healing art have combined to make it the curative triumph of the age.

On next Sunday evening, at the Congregational church, Miss M. A. Francis, formerly of Locust Grove, but now a missionary among the Indians in Dakota and Nebraska, will address the Sabbath school children upon christian work at an Indian reservation. As Miss F. has spent several years in this work, something may be expected which will be interesting not only to children but also to adults. As all are invited we bespeak a good audience.

A grand ball will be given by Mr. Henry Raschen for the benefit of the Sonoma Brass Band, at Union Hall, next Friday evening. The affair will be gotten up in style, and no pains will be spared to make it the ball of the season. The committee of arrangements are Messrs. Granville Harris, H. H. Granice and G. P. Dey, while Mr. O. Rufus will act as floor manager. Fine music has been engaged and the supper will be all that can be desired. The Sonoma Brass Band is making remarkable progress in their practice, and in a few weeks our town will boast of a band whose equal cannot be found in any interior town in the State. The young gentlemen composing the band are under a heavy expense in purchasing instruments, employing a teacher, etc., and it is to be hoped our people will give them a rousing benefit. They deserve encouragement, as a well-equipped brass band in Sonoma is something that has long been needed. It will give life to the town and add much to the amusement of our people.

Till the last stone be rolled away
And a new light shall bring eternal day."

The Grant memorial exercises held in Sonoma last Saturday were very impressive and were participated in by a large number of people. The principal business houses were appropriately draped, bells tolled and salutes were fired at sunrise and sunset.

The City Pavilion, where the exercises were held, was beautifully draped and decorated with flowers and evergreens, which were in perfect harmony with the solemn and impressive occasion. The Committee on Decorations received many compliments for the taste and simplicity of their handiwork. The floral offerings were beautiful, particularly those of Mrs. J. R. Snyder and Miss L. Rufus. At one o'clock, people commenced to file into the Pavilion and in a short time it was filled to overflowing. Seats had been provided for five hundred, but these were inadequate to accomodate those present, and many were compelled to witness the services standing. At two o'clock the exercises were opened by an anthem by the choir, after which the Rev. H. H. Wikoff offered a fervent prayer. The prayer was followed by the singing of the beautiful chant, "Abide With Me," by the choir. The Hon. W. McP. Hill then arose and after a ten minutes' speech introduced to those assembled the Hon. Chancellor Harston of Napa, who delivered an eloquent address elogistic of the life and character of the dead hero of half an hour's duration. He was followed by a solo and chorus, "Rest, Spirit, Rest," which was beautifully sang by Mrs. Weems assisted by the choir. If there is anything that the people of Sonoma take pride in, it is the singing of this lady; and it is a fortunate community, indeed, who possess a lady of her vocal talents who is ever ready to volunteer them on occasions like this. This was followed by an address by the Hon. J. K. Luttrell, who held the attention of audience with his eloquent remarks and personal reminiscenses of General Grant, whom he was intimately acquainted with. Then followed a solo and chorus, "Jesus, Lover of my Soul," which was rendered with pathos by Mrs. Weems and the choir. The audience and choir then sung, "America." Rev. H. H. Wikoff then pronounced the benediction and the audience quietly and reverently dispersed.

A Model Town.

Under the above caption, the Merced "Argus," whose editors, Mr. and Mrs. R. J. Steele, recently paid us a short visit, speaks thus complimentary of Sonoma:

"The town of Sonoma, Sonoma county, Cal., is naturally a very pretty little town, nestling in quiet beauty like a little basin filled with health, wealth and happiness. And it is, we presume, the most moral town in the State. There is not a house of bad repute nor a woman of doubtful character within its limits. Every saloon is closed at 4 o'clock on Sunday afternoons and remain closed until Monday morning. Such a thing as a drunken man is not seen upon the streets for months. There are three churches—a Catholic, Congregational and Methodist—and a beautiful school-house with all modern improvements. There are several secret beneficiary societies and several social and literary clubs. The Clay Literary Club is a well established society and meets Monday evenings. Balls and musical entertainments are held frequently. There are no real poor people in this thriving little town. This is one of the oldest towns in California. Gen. Vallejo, the founder, still lives in its suburbs.

Badger's Furniture Emporium.

In looking through this establishment, recently, we were greatly surprised at the immense stock carried by its proprietor. Here is to be found elegant parlor and bed-room furniture for those who can afford to purchase a fine article, and more modest sets for those who wish to furnish their homes at small cost. Also, tapestry, three-ply and body Brussels carpets, elegant oil paintings, pictures, chromos, cornices, elegant and plain lace curtains, and kitchen furniture without limit. Mr. Badger's stock is as large and as varied as that of any furniture store in Sonoma county, and a look through his establishment will amply repay visitors for their trouble. For a number of years many of the people of the Sonoma Valley have been in the habit of going to Petaluma to get their house furnishing goods, but as Mr. B. sells as cheap as the cheapest, we are pleased to say that he is gradually getting the trade of the Sonoma Valley. When he gets a customer, his fair dealing always ensures his retaining him, and in this manner he is building up a large business, and Badger's Furniture Emporium is now one of the fixtures of Sonoma.

PRESS OPINIONS.

What is Said About the Index-Tribune.

The following complimentary notices are culled from our exchanges. They will serve to show the local patrons of the INDEX-TRIBUNE that our efforts to give them a first-class local paper are appreciated by our contemporaries of the Press, as well as by the people of the Sonoma Valley. These notices are all the more valuable from the fact that they are penned by editors of years of experience and who yield able and forcible pens, and as we are but mortal, anyhow, we cannot but feel highly flattered by the same:

[Napa Reporter.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has commenced its eighth volume and has been enlarged into a seven-column paper. Mr. Granice, who has been its editor and proprietor for the past eight months, has made an excellent local journal of it—something which Sonoma has never before had. We are glad to hear that he is making a financial success of the INDEX-TRIBUNE, and if he will now lop off one half of the hyphenated name of his paper, we will say that it is one of the neatest and newsiest country papers in the State.

[Santa Rosa Democrat.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has entered upon the eighth year of its existence and has been enlarged to seven columns to the page. There has been a wonderful transformation in the paper since it passed into the hands of its present owner, H. H. Granice. From being one of the poorest local papers in the State it has become one of the best, and we are glad to see that it is appreciated by its patrons. We wish it continued prosperity.

[Cloverdale Pacific Sentinel.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has entered upon the eighth year of its existence, and has been enlarged to a seven-column paper. Under the able management of Mr. H. H. Granice the paper has much improved, and the people of the Sonoma valley should feel proud of it and give it the liberal support it deserves.

[Fresno Republican.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE entered upon its eight volume with its issue of August 1st. Under the management of Mr. Granice the paper has been made in every particular worthy of substantial encouragement by the prosperous community in which it is published.

[Napa Journal.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has entered upon its eighth volume. Under Mr. Granice's management the paper has made wonderful improvement, and we hope he is meeting with the liberal patronage his industry and enterprise deserve.

[Healdsburg Enterprise.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has entered upon the eighth year of its existence, and has enlarged to a twenty-eight-column paper. It deserves success, and will doubtless achieve it.

[Petaluma Argus.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE has turned the leaf of its eighth volume. Mr. Granice makes it an excellent local paper, and is deserving of liberal support.

[Napa Regular.]

The Sonoma INDEX-TRIBUNE, a good paper under present management, has entered upon the eight year of its existence.

SANTA ROSA NOTES.

[Daily Democrat.]

Robert Barrett, Internal Revenue Collector for the Fourth District, has appointed Frank H. Swett, of Santa Rosa, Deputy Collector for District No. 7, composed of Sonoma, Marin and Mendocino counties.

Ben. T. Wilson, who was accidentally shot while hunting in the Guilicos Valley last Sunday week, has so far recovered as to be removed from H. McClelland's place to his father's residence in this city. He was brought in on Wednesday. His condition is such as to give every hope of speedy recovery.

On the 22d day of July, Mrs. Eliza R. Fry, aged 92 years, died at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. John L. Bacon, in Richmond, Virginia. Mrs. Fry was an aunt of R. A. and T. L. Thompson, of this city, and was the last surviving daughter of the Hon. Phil R. Thompson, who represented the Culp pper District in Congress during the administration of Thomas Jefferson.

On Thursday afternoon, as J. W. Fulkerson and a man named Ford, were hunting on John Fulkerson's ranch, about twenty-five miles west of Cloverdale, Fulkerson left his companion, and while stalking in some chapperel, down in a canyon, was mistaken for a deer by Ford, who was on the range above him, and shot. The ball struck him in the right side of the stomach, and ranged downward. The accident occurred about 5 P. M., Thursday, and the young man lingered in intense agony until 1 P. M., Friday, when death released him from his suffering.

CLOVERDALE ITEMS.

[Pacific Sentinel.]

School opened Monday with 196 scholars in attendance, which number has been increased during the week.

Mountain fires which have been raging during the past week, have made the atmosphere very smoky and hot.

The prospect for a large hop crop in this county is very flattering. It is a pity that prices are so low. The crop of many fields will not be taken off the vines.

We regret to report the death of Mr. Fred. Clay, which took place at his residence near Hopland last Saturday. The funeral was held last Sunday afternoon. Mr. Clay had many friends in this vicinity who extend their sympathy to his sorrowing family.

The extreme hot weather of last Saturday, Sunday and Monday, as far as we can learn, has done some damage to the ripening grape crop, especially Zinfandels in young vineyards; but to what extent we are unable to say at this writing. However, where the vineyards are on gravelly soil we hear that some grapes are quite badly burned.

HEALDSBURG HAPPENINGS.

[Enterprise.]

Sarah E. Sterling, wife of P. W. Sterling, died at Healdsburg last Tuesday and was buried on the 5th.

Fruit is being shipped to Santa Rosa and Petaluma at the rate of ten tons a day for canning purposes.

One young man of Healdsburg, his imagination excited by the flaming posters which announce the coming circus, sold his family cooking stove to obtain money to admit himself and family.

Dave Hopper met with quite a serious accident last Tuesday. He was hauling rails when the wagon ran into a deep rut, and threw him violently against a bank by the roadside, bruising his face badly. The wheels, also, ran over and fractured his ankle.

A forest fire broke out in some mysterious way in a pocket canyon, near Guerneville, on Friday of last week, and has been raging ever since, destroying considerable wood, posts, tanbark, etc. Crowds of men from all over that section have been fighting it several days, and it is now under control. Loss severe.

Last Wednesday night as Mr. T. Riley was going home, when opposite the establishment of Metzger Bros., he heard a crash as of broken glass. Feeling assured that something was wrong he gave the alarm. A posse of five or six soon gathered, and upon investigation, it was discovered that the would-be burglars had placed a ladder against the store, and breaking the glass in the sky-light attempted to enter, but were frightened away by the alarm.

A Hotel Man's Discovery.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal.—Mr. George H. Arnold, proprietor of the Occidental Hotel, says that as the air is purer as we ascend, a man should not object to being assigned to a room on the uppermost floor, that he shouldn't mind taking a room-attic, as it were, in view of the fact that St. Jacobs Oil so promptly cures the rheumatic. He states that throughout California it is regarded as the great pain-cure of the age.

To the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance Company of California—

GENTLEMEN:

I wish to express to you my heartfelt thanks and appreciation for your kindness in paying the amount of policy—$3,000—on my late husband, Nicholas Carriger, so far in advance of the time due. B. Davis, for the prompt manner in paying the policy, and I can and do most heartily recommend the Pacific Mutual to those desirous of affecting Life Insurance with absolute security and fair treatment.

Each one of these above named implements, combined in the one represented in the illustration, is an admirable implement for the purpose intended, combining more valuable features than any other Sulky Harrow and worth twice as much. Its Superiority also over any of the so-called "Floating, Spring-Tooth Harrows" is so great that no farmer can afford to buy the latter to save a few dollars difference in cost. The WARNER is far more economical than such. E. H. GRANICE - - [illegible]UST 15, 1885.

SATURD[illegible]

A F[illegible] know a secret
[illegible] do not tell;
[illegible] morn brings a message,
Hidden well.

There's a blush on the apple,
A tint on the wing,
And the bright wind whistles,
And the pulses sting.

Perish dark memories!
There's light ahead;
This world's for the living,
Not for the dead.

In the shining city,
On the loud pave,
The life-tide is running
Like a leaping wave.

How the stream quickens,
As noon draws near!
No room for loiterers,
No time for fear.

Out on the farm-lands
Earth smiles as well:
Gold-crusted grain-fields,
With sweet, warm smell;

Whirr of the reaper,
Like a giant bee;
Like a Titan cricket,
Thrilling with glee.

On mart, and meadow,
Pavement, or plain;
On azure mountain,
Or azure main,—

Heaven bends in blessing;
Lost is but won;
Goes the good rain-cloud!
Comes the good sun!

Only babes whimper,
And sick men wail,
And faint-hearts, and feeble-hearts,
And weaklings fail.

Down the great currents
Let the boat swing;
There was never winter
But brought the spring.

—E. R. Sill in August Overland.

WOE UNTO MAN.

There be but little in life to live for. The world is a hollow mockery, full of troubles, trials and bad piano players.

We dabble in politics and bet all our wealth on the leading man, and the other man getteth elected and we are left to mourn.

We run for office and our friends manage for us and spend our money, and behold we come out badly scooped and crushed financially. We marry for wealth, and our girl's old man assigns.

We deny ourselves many things in order to lay up some cash in the bank, and the cashier fleeth unto Canada. And in an evil hour when we dream not of it, the merchant presenteth a bill for our wife's new bonnet, and the farm and the stock goeth under mortgage to pay it.

Woe unto man! Of how little consequence is his joy.

In infancy he is full of colic and catnip, and in youth he goeth about with a thorn in his heel.

In the evening of life he lieth down full of rheumatism, aches and anti-bilious pills.

The places that once knew him know him now only by the promissory notes and accounts he has left unpaid. And this is the end of man.

He cometh forth in fine raiment and standing collar, and at noon time he goeth about with one suspender and with the seat of his pants patched with an old sock.

He carrieth a torch in the procession, and whoopeth it up for his party, and behold the man who staid at home is appointed to office.

Such is the career of man.

Lo! in an hour when he dreameth not of it, a breechy mule kicketh him athwart the center and he dieth.

PRICES OF FRUIT IN THE FIFTIES.

The prices of fruit in 1858 were extraordinary. In May of that year a San Francisco journal said: "The first ripe cherries the present season appeared May 3d. They were from the Lee Gardens, Oakland, and of the variety known as the Van Slyke, medium size, pale red, inclining to yellow, slightly mottled, and of excellent flavor. To us they possessed so strong a "taste of silver' it was difficult to distinguish between them and the real shining metal, selling as they were at one dollar a dozen." On the 22d of May, Black Tartarians were in market, and sold for five dollars a pound; in June they brought two dollars, which was considered quite reasonable. May 15th, the first blackberries appeared. They were wild, gathered in the Coast Range valleys and ravines, "plentifully mingled with red ones," and better adapted to cooking than for dessert; but they commanded fifty cents a pound. May 22d, watermelons from the Hawaiian Islands arrived, and were sold at two dollars apiece. Seven years before, in 1851, the late George G. Briggs, of the well-known Briggs Orchards, near Marysville, on the Yuba River bottom, had planted twenty-five acres of melons, which he cultivated, gathered, and sold at his own door for sixteen thousand dollars above all expenses. This story seems well authenticated, as it appears in State reports and in the "California Culturist" for June, 1858, then edited by W. Wadsworth, the corresponding Secretary of the State Agricultural Society, of which J. C. Fall was President.—C. H. Shinn in August Overland.

It is not considered the correct thing for grass widows to wear black.

A DEATH BY INCHES.

How an Unfortunate Fisherman Met His Death.

[Vallejo Chronicle.]

Tuesday morning about 10:30 o'clock, as Louis Malley was coming up Georgia street wharf he noticed the head and shoulders of a man projecting out of the water, about 100 feet south of the wharf and alongside a fishing boat. Word was sent to men at the foot of the wharf, and getting boats at the float they went to investigate the matter. They found to their dismay that it was the body of John Johnson, a Swede, who has been following the vocation of fishing in these waters for some time past. Mr. Malley, getting a rope out of the boat not ten feet away, attached it to the body, and started to take it to the float, but found that it was fast in the mud, being buried almost up to the waist, and it was with considerable difficulty that it was extricated. The body was taken out on the wharf, after which Coroner Egery was notified, and in the afternoon held an inquest. There was no one that can account for the manner in which the deceased met his death. He was seen on the street last evening by several parties, apparently in good health. Not long ago he was a sailor in the U. S. Navy, and at the expiration of the term of his enlistment he went into the fishing business, which he followed up to the time of his death, and the only property he is known to have had is the boats and apparatus connected with them.

The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that the deceased came to his death by accidental drowning, that his name was John Johnson, a native of Sweden, aged about 67 years.

Coroner Egery informs us that on Monday night the Greek fishermen on the water front between Georgia and Main street wharves heard cries of distress from Johnson, the unfortunate man who was drowned, and did not pay any attention to them for the reason, as they said, they thought him crazy. It was shortly after 9 o'clock, Johnson had gone to his sloop in a small boat, and having transferred a parcel, evidently slipped when endeavoring to get on the sloop himself, shoving the small boat away and falling overboard. The tide was partly in at the time. The mud on the rudder of the sloop would indicate that he tried to climb on board, and being unsuccessful, started for shore, and getting stuck in the mud was held there while the tide rose higher and higher and at last went over him, and it was when he saw his fate staring him in the face that he cried for help. How terrible death must have came upon him can readily be imagined.

A man residing on the line of a railroad has taught his dog to bark vociferously at every passing train. The impulse of the firemen is to watch for the barking dog and hurl pieces of coal at him in passing. The result to the owner is that he has delivered at his door all the coal he requires for his own use free of cost, and is now contemplating the opening of a coal-yard for the supply of his neighbors. He thinks he can compete with the oldest coal-dealers in the vicinity.

GOOD TIDINGS.

"Dr. Smith:—Your truly wonderful Caloric Vita Oil has performed for me the most remarkable and speedy cure of rheumatism on record. I do not hesitate to recommend it as the greatest pain reliever in existence.

"T. B. Gillum.
"No. 534 Fifteenth street, Oakland, Cal."

"It cured my neuralgia in a few hours, when I had suffered night after night with it and tried everything.

"A Local Preacher.
"San Francisco. Cal."

"I feel like sounding its praise on the housetops.

"Hon. Chas. A. Sumner."

Won't Blister.—Caloric Vita Oil takes the place of all pain killing lotions or liniments, poultices or blisters, and while its penetrating, heating, healing and vital action is tenfold more powerful than either, it will not chafe or blister.

Dr. J. Winchester, Columbia, Cal., says: "Have used Vita Oil with the most beneficial results; can endorse without hesitation your claim. As a family remedy for the relief of pain it has no equal in the world. In our household it has become indispensable."

"With a thankful heart I acknowledge the great merit of Dr. Smith's Caloric Vita Oil. I had suffered over 30 years with Bronchitis and was seriously threatened with lung disease. I had tried all remedies and all climates with occasional temporary relief, but no cure. The use of two small bottles made me a sound man.

"A Bank Officer."

A prominent druggist in San Francisco:—"We hazard nothing in saying it is the best pain curer and healing remedy ever used or known. It acts quickly, promptly and certainly in relieving pain. Hundreds of sufferers have been relieved by it, to the wonder of thousands of their friends. Its sales have doubled nearly every month."

"It will do the heaviest work of any medicine I ever handled, and quick, too."

A Physician.

One hundred and thirty-six wholesale and retail druggists in San Francisco and Oakland are selling Caloric Vita Oil, and not a single complaint has ever reached us.

"I am 72. Had suffered over 40 years with rheumatism, but Dr. Smith's Caloric Vita Oil cured me after every known remedy failed.

"An Old Veteran."

All that is asked for Vita Oil is a single trial. Its great merit for the relief of pain can never be known except by the sufferer who has tried it.

Physical Sports.—If pedestrians, gymnasts, ball-players, oarsmen and those engaged in the rougher pastimes (sports) would prevent soreness, lameness, contraction of the muscles, or other injuries received from the nature of their calling, they should rub freely with Caloric Vita Oil. No athlete ever used it but was ready and willing to sound its praise.

Full directions for using Vita Oil in a variety of diseases accompany each bottle.

Vita Oil is to be had of all leading druggists in San Francisco and generally throughout the Pacific Coast, and by many retail dealers where there is no druggist. It will soon be found indispensable in every family. Price 50 cents and $1 per bottle.

An Open Secret.

The fact is well understood that the MEXICAN MUSTANG LINIMENT is by far the best external known for man or beast. The reason why becomes an "open secret" when we explain that "Mustang" penetrates skin, flesh and muscle to the very bone, removing all disease and soreness. No other liniment does this, hence none other is so largely used or does such worlds of good.
